How to Dress for a Winter Getaway

Your perfect weekend outfits = found

BY JESSICA HOTSON
FEBRUARY 26, 2016

When I hear "winter retreat," the first image that comes to mind is me, relaxing fireside with a good book and a glass of red. So recently, when I started packing for my recent luxury getaway to The Lodge at Glendorn in Northwest Pennsylvania, my bag quickly filled with flannel onesies and hydrating sheet masks—the essential tools of a lazy weekend. I soon realized, though, that since my planned activities actually included snowmobiling, cross country skiing, ice fishing and skeet shooting, I needed to stock up on some cozy chic pieces. Luckily in today's sporty fashion world, there are tons of amazing brands (many Canadian!) to keep me warm while I was exploring nature. Thank God for those hydrating masks though—after a day of fun in the snow, moisture was key.

DAY 1: MORNING

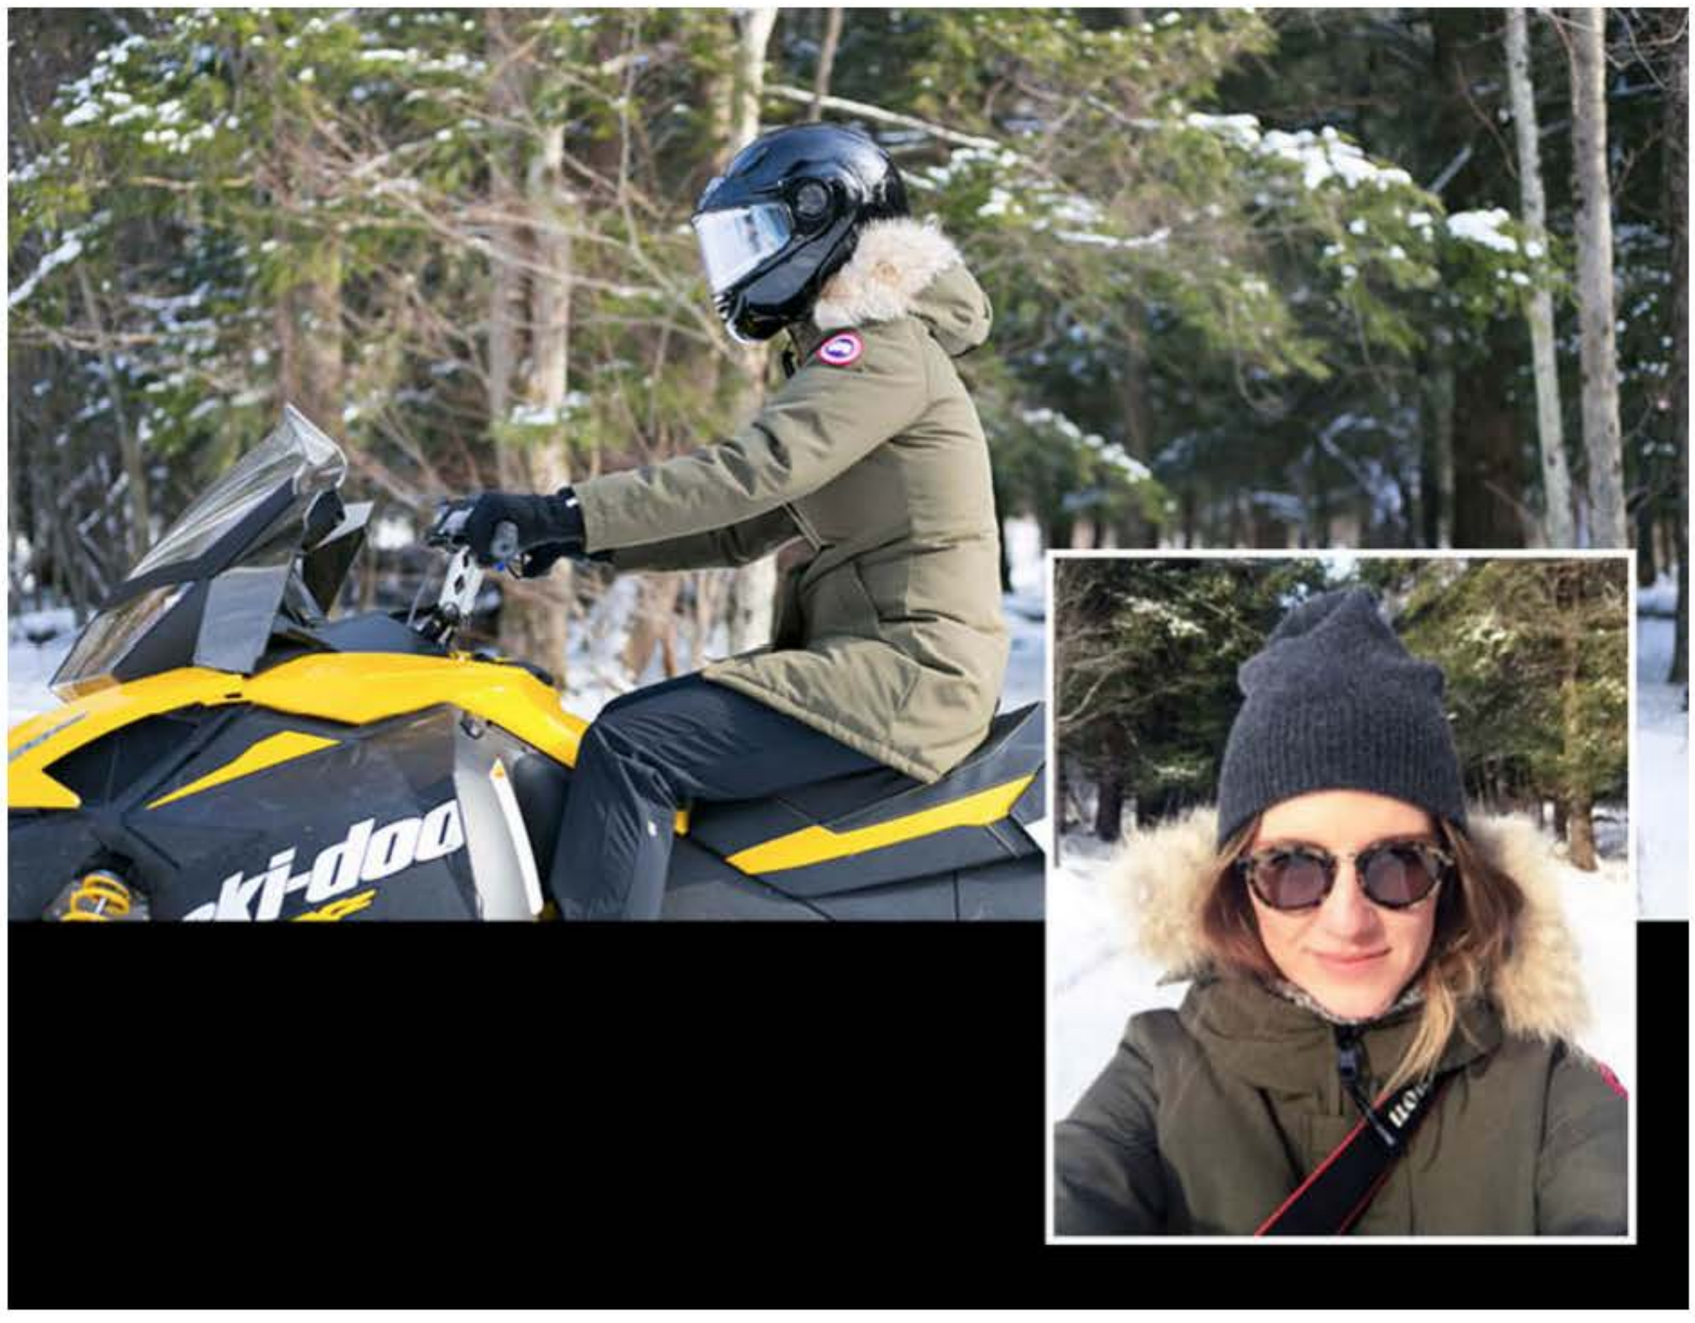
This winter's inconsistent temperatures have made layering an essential art. I love pairing a down jacket or vest with denim or leather layers. This MEC Spicy Hoodie ($270, mec.ca) paired with the Roots Drafting Coat ($148, www.roots.com) was a perfect combination for comfort and style. The new Hunter Norris Field Rain Boot ($160, http://ca.hunterboots.com/) kept my feet perfectly dry and provided lots of grip on icy roads, while the Original Down Boot Socks ($70) added extra warmth in the snow.

DAY 1: AFTERNOON

I packed this Roots cape to layer with my grandmother's Irish knit sweater. It was a perfect cross-country skiing outfit that offered a ton of mobility, and of course my quintessential HBC Collection Toque to remind all of Pennsylvania of my Canadian roots. These Cougar ZAG boots are amazingly comfortable and warm due to the polar plush lining.

DAY 2: MORNING

With moon boots being so in style this year, I couldn't resist these Cougar Original boots in their new red incarnation. This MEC parka was perfect for more active outings and these amazing Saint Laurent Paris glasses helped protect me from the sun and snow.



DAY 2: AFTERNOON

I couldn't resist finishing my weekend with a little snowmobiling in the sun, and this Canada Goose parka was perfect for the low temperature and high wind. These MEC snow pants were lightweight enough and kept me plenty warm with their fleece lining.

For the latest in fashion and beauty, pick up a copy of The Kit's print edition found inside The Toronto Star on Thursdays, Edmonton Journal, Calgary Herald and Ottawa Citizen on Fridays and The Vancouver Sun and Montreal Gazette on Saturdays.

In Toronto, look for The Kit Compact, our monthly beauty and style pop-up mag, the first week of every month.